The “turning point” - The evolving new international era and mobility

Given the dramatic security environment changes of the past few years, where domestic policies had been prioritized and unilateralism was on the rise, is the global community facing a turning point? Great power challenges and dramatic economic shifts, not to mention the unresolved transnational challenges of pandemic, energy security, rapid climate change, immigration, wealth disparity, and authoritarianism. How will the world address these challenges and how will mobility and HSR be positioned? What is the evolving new world order going to look like?
